MBA 665 Final Project Guidelines and Rubric

Overview

The final project for this course is the creation of an impact of governmental action on a business paper.

Governments at all levels—federal, state, and municipal—exert a significant influence on business. The impacts of these influences can be negative, such as the imposition of costly regulations, or they may be positive, such as the provision of financial incentives for the creation of new jobs. Governmental actions present challenges for businesses: the impact of the action on the business's "bottom line," how public opinion influences a business's response to a particular action, and the ethical issues associated with each response, for example.

For this assessment, you will select a business that has faced, or is facing, governmental action and analyze the impact of this action on the business. As vice president of governmental affairs for the company, your role is vice president of governmental affairs. Ideally, the business that you select will be the same one discussed in your business plan for MBA 560: Marketing and Strategy. If that company does not yet exist, you should choose one in the same area of focus that addresses a specific regulatory issue, or political challenge, with instructor consultation and approval. This is important because the analysis you conduct will be based on your knowledge of potential situations or challenges facing your business product, service, or other idea from your business plan.

Note: If you have not yet completed a business plan in the MBA 560: Marketing and Strategy course, you will select a company to analyze.

The project is divided into three milestones, which will be submitted at various points throughout the course to scaffold learning and assessment. These milestones will be submitted in Modules Two, Four, and Six. The final project will be submitted in Module Six.

In this assignment, you will demonstrate your mastery of the following course outcomes:

- Analyze potential political challenges for determining possible impacts on business environments and sustainable operations
- Evaluate the roles and functions of business project teams for addressing government incentives or potential business challenges
- Recommend communication approaches designed to be presented to the public for mitigating possible situations that could impact a business's image
- Determine effective solutions for addressing multi-faceted business challenges in macroeconomic and global environments
- Recommend external resources and approaches in effectively advocating for businesses by evaluating the roles and functions of business affairs specialists in the political process

Prompt

Your macroeconomic evaluation should answer the following prompt: Select a business that has faced, or is facing, government action of this action on the business. Ideally, the business that you select will be the same one discussed in the business plan you created in your Strategy. If that company does not yet exist, you should choose one in the same area of focus that is facing a governmental action or challenge, with instructor consultation and approval. This is important because the analysis you complete now should help inform your business plan. While your area of focus is on the situations or challenges facing your business product, service, or other idea from your business plan. While your area of focus is on the topics and situations listed here, these should still give you an idea of the type of situation for which to look.

Topic examples:

- The decision of LG Corporation to construct a new corporate headquarters on the Hudson River in New Jersey, in the same area as the business plan you created in your Strategy.
- The decision of Tesla Motors, Inc. to choose among competing incentive packages from local governments for the construction of a Gigafactory
- The threat of Amazon.com to move its drone research development activities out of the United States unless the Federal Aviation Administration takes a more favorable regulatory stance
- The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration's decision to issue numerous citations to Ashley Furniture
- McDonald's Corporation and the decision by Seattle, Washington to increase the minimum wage in that city

Specifically, the following critical elements must be addressed:

- I. Overview: In your role as vice president of governmental affairs, your boss, the business's CEO, is considering retaining a consultant to assist the company with a government issue that it is facing. Jack Harris is the president of that firm, which is called Consulting Solutions. Your boss that he will not know if he can help until he learns more information about your company and the issue it faces. Write a memo that will provide a detailed overview of your company as well as the government action that it is facing. Address the following:
 - A. Business Profile: Provide a brief profile of the business and the industry it occupies, including the business's mission, vision, and values, as well as opportunities and threats facing the business and industry outside of the particular governmental action. [MBA-665-01]
 - B. Governmental Action: Analyze the potential governmental action or political challenge that will affect the business. [MBA-665-01]
 - C. Organization and Teams: Describe the organization of the company, including divisions and project teams, and how the company has used these teams to respond to government regulations in the past. [MBA-665-02]
 - D. Stakeholders: Describe the company's internal and external stakeholders. In your description, include the actions you will take to date to influence the political process and advocate for the business's interests. [MBA-665-05]
 - E. Current Environment: Describe the current business environment, both financial and otherwise, including the current state of the situation and the initial position taken by political actors and other stakeholders. [MBA-665-01]

- II. Analysis: After submitting your overview, your boss is having second thoughts about bringing Jack Harris and his firm. He makes his final decision he has asked you to provide him with a thorough analysis of the situation faced by your business. Write a memorandum to him (the CEO) analyzing the situation that your business faces as well as the resources that are available to your business.
- A. Business Environment: Based on your analysis of the governmental action or political challenge, what will be the impact of the action or political challenge on the business's financial situation and operations? Does the action represent an opportunity or threat? [MBA-665-01]
 - B. Sustainability: Based on your analysis of the governmental action or political challenge, how will the government's action impact the sustainability of the business? [MBA-665-01]
 - C. Internal Resources: Evaluate the internal resources of the company, including the business project teams that are available to address the opportunity or threat. In other words, is the business adequately organized to address the opportunity or threat? [MBA-665-02]
 - D. Communication: How has information about the situation been communicated to various stakeholders? For example, have meetings been held? Have the radio, newspapers, and/or social media been used? [MBA-665-03]
 - E. Company Image: Assess how the situation has affected the company's public image. Has the impact been primarily positive or negative? If the impact has been primarily negative, what are the positive aspects in addition to the negative aspects? If the impact has been primarily positive, what are the negative aspects in addition to the positive aspects? [MBA-665-03]
 - F. Response: What are the potential courses of action to respond to the situation in the current macroeconomic environment? In other words, what is the range of options for the business in this situation? [MBA-665-04]
 - G. Impact: How will these courses of action impact the business? Make sure to consider both short- and long-term financial, and ethical implications. [MBA-665-04]
 - H. External Resources: Evaluate the roles and functions of third parties or external resources in the situation. Consider your response: How will lobbyists be involved in the situation? Will there be public affairs professionals who will be involved with the government or the business? [MBA-665-05]
- III. Recommendations: After submitting your analysis memorandum, your CEO has decided that your business needs the services of Jack Harris and his firm Crisis Consulting can provide. Time is of the essence, and so Jack has called a meeting of the team next week. While Jack is familiar with your business, due to your overview, the rest of his team is not. Your CEO has asked you to prepare a memorandum to Jack that he can distribute to his team that will be assisting your business. Do not assume that the team knows anything about the governmental action it faces. In addition, the CEO has asked you to include your recommendations for addressing the situation.
- A. Business Project Teams: Based on your evaluation of the internal resources that are available to the company, how can they be efficiently engaged to obtain the most favorable results for the company? [MBA-665-02]
 - B. Communication: Based on your assessment of the business's public image, recommend communication approaches that will help to mitigate the impact of negative information about the business. [MBA-665-03]
 - C. Solution: Based on the courses of action and their impacts that you previously described, determine an effective solution to the situation it is facing. How does the solution address the governmental action(s) or political challenge(s) faced by the business? [MBA-665-04]
 - D. Political Influence: Based on your evaluation of external resources, how should the company utilize outside resources to advocate for the business and influence the political process? [MBA-665-05]

Milestones

Milestone One: Topic Selection

In Module Two, you will submit a topic selection short paper. Key to your success is providing the background to thoroughly address the critical elements. The business topic will be the same one that you created in your MBA 560: Marketing and Strategy course. If the idea has a significant government impact, you will need to identify one or more government impacts that the business idea would be likely to confront. Note: If you have not yet completed a business plan in the Marketing and Strategy course, you should choose an existing business.

Your short paper should identify and briefly describe the business that you propose to study and describe the government impact you believe is most likely to confront. Make your case for why the business and government impact you select are appropriate subjects for the final project. If you believe that your choice will not provide sufficient material for you to achieve success with the final project, you may have to choose a different government impact. The topic selection short paper should be 2–3 double-spaced pages. This milestone is graded with the Milestone One Rubric.

Milestone Two: Overview

In Module Four, you will submit the Overview section of your final project, which continues building on what you started in Module Two. This section includes all of the final project critical elements. You will provide the business profile and governmental action, revised according to feedback from your instructor. Then add organization and teams, stakeholders, and current environment. Be sure to support all factual claims/positions with appropriate research materials. This overview should be 8-10 double-spaced pages. This milestone is graded with the Milestone Two Rubric.

Milestone Three: Analysis

In Module Six, you will submit the Analysis section of your final project, which is Section II of the final project critical elements. This section includes answers to all the questions in the Analysis section on business environment, sustainability, internal resources, communication, and external resources. The analysis should be 8-10 double-spaced pages. This milestone is graded with the Milestone Three Rubric.

Final Submission: Impact of Governmental Action on a Business Paper

In Module Nine, you will submit your comprehensive final project. It should be a complete, polished artifact containing all of the final project critical elements and a final product. It should reflect the incorporation of feedback gained throughout the course. Make sure to include the overview, analysis, and recommendation sections in your final submission. The recommendation questions are listed in Section III of the final project critical elements and include organization, teams, communications, solution, and political influence. Make sure to support all factual claims/positions with appropriate research materials. Your final paper should be 15-20 double-spaced, pages. This milestone will be graded using the Final Project Rubric (below).
