IHP 420 Milestone One Guidelines and Rubric

Overview: The final case study for this course will require you to analyze a court decision in which a physician was found liable. You will focus on facts pertaining to the medical standard of care, breach of care, and causation, and you will explain how they were applied. You will analyze the facts of the case to identify an ethics issue and determine an ethical theory that would help provide a safe, quality healthcare system. You will apply a clinician–patient shared decision-making model to describe how the ethics issue could be resolved. You will analyze possible violations of the code of ethics in your given field. Lastly, you will augment or vary the facts of the case to create a hypothetical situation that would change the outcome so that the physician is no longer liable for medical malpractice.

For this milestone, you will start working on the case for Final Project I: Malpractice. Below is a link to the case you will investigate. You will also find a link to the Final Project I Guidelines and Rubric document.

- Surgery: Iturralde v. Hilo Medical Center USA

Prompt: In this milestone, you will complete part of your analysis of the malpractice case. Using this analysis of the case, you will evaluate the medical standard of care, breach of care, and causation.

Specifically, the following critical elements must be addressed:

I. Introduction:

- A. Summarize the case, including information on the stakeholders involved, the problem, and the time period the case occurred.

II. Medical Malpractice Component: In this section, you will evaluate the case to address the legal components, the medical standard of care, and the standard of care given to the patient and how it was breached. Then, you will draw connections to how the case may affect other stakeholders and healthcare consumers outside of the case.

- A. Explain the key legal components of the case, including the nature of the issue and the rules that applied.
- B. Determine relevant malpractice policies in place for addressing the issues within the case.
- C. Analyze the malpractice case for the standard of care provided to the victim. Be sure to apply what the law states about the standard of care and support whether or not it was breached in the case.
- D. Analyze how the malpractice case would impact healthcare consumers from different cultural backgrounds. In what ways is there a similar impact on a person from a culture different from the one in the case? How could this incident change the way healthcare consumers toward the healthcare system?
- E. Assess the malpractice case for accountability based on its severity. To what extent was the healthcare provider negligent?
